On the Cover

Larry Coleman's garden is officially called Stonewoodbridge Gardens in the ASA member database. The many rock water-crossings and built amenities in the garden indicate how appropriate this name is. Looking up at the trails leading down his garden, it really is almost a "cliff garden." The scale of the undertaking is indicated by the number of ASA members shown in this image, who are still dwarfed by the "wall of planting pockets" along the well-mulched trail zig-zagging down the rock hillside. A few members are identifiable: In red jacket upper right, ASA Vice-president Charlie Andrews; photographer (on lowest ground level) John Perkins takes photo of Sally Perkins (New Hampshire members in NVA Chapter) standing next to Arkansas at-large member Larry Coleman (in blue jacket).
