On the Cover

A Woodlanders Nursery selection of Rhododendron flammeum, or Oconee Azalea, acquired in 2002 glows in pastel tones along the edge of a sunlit glade within the Bartlett Research Arboretum. This plant is 8' tall by 8' wide, one of a group of three, and "...a real traffic stopper" according to Kevin McCorkle, Central Carolinas Chapter President. A day of exploring the expansive private Arboretum grounds will be a highlight of the 2021 ASA Convention in Charlotte, NC, hosted by the Central Carolinas Chapter. (See related article on p. 34-36.)
