GARDENER'S CORNER

CORRELATION OF BLOOM COLOR AND FALL FOLIAGE COLOR: If you will start comparing Fall foliage color with the bloom colors, you will find that with a little practice, you can correctly identify bloom color from foliage about 95% of the time. Certain principles apply: (assuming the plant is hardened off and has gone into dormancy) yellow foliage indicates white bloom, yellow variegated foliage indicates variegated white bloom with the darker colored foliage denoting darker colored bloom, purple and red bloom will have foliage ranging from scarlet to red to deep crimson, pink blooming plants have a variable foliage which changes from light salmon to orange to deep red with the changing of the season and appears to be dappled, and multi-colored and bi-colored plants will also have a variable/dappled foliage. Discuss with me in the Fall if you desire more information.

IMPACT OF LABELS ON YOUNG PLANTS DURING COLD WEATHER: Based upon testing I have done, it appears that all labels will have some impact on young plants (those with branches less than 1/8" in diameter) during cold weather. This usually results in injury to the branch where the label is attached in the form of callused or swollen growth which allows poor subsequent development above this point or in split bark/split branch. As a general rule, on young plants such as liners, don't apply the tag to the central stem and use a plastic label or one attached with insulated wire.

BEST NEW AZALEAS: New azaleas which impressed me the most during the past year are CHINPU - slow growing with lovely foliage and bloom color; and Gable's Apricot - an absolutely stunning pastel bloom color (I won't offer this one until 1991).

OUT OF SEASON BLOOM: Don't be surprised when a plant blooming out of season has a totally abnormal bloomtype, i.e.; double instead of single or different degree of color shading. I don't know the reason, but I assure you it is totally normal.

RABBIT DAMAGE TO AZALEAS: First, while it may be of little consolation, you will find that rabbit damage will be limited to those plants having the following blood lines: Macrantha, Satsuki, R. Indicum, or R. Tamurae. However; this may help you locate certain plants in areas that are less vulnerable to damage. Secondly, the damage will generally be short-lived in that young plants seem to have some quality which attracts rabbits, but these same plants seem to loose their appeal by the time they are 7 or 8 years old.

GROWTH RATE OF AZALEAS: Comparison of azaleas (grown in the same medium with similar watering and feeding programs) grown in the sun without any interference from invasive root systems and those in the shade with outside interference, revealed the following: In 2 years the total area of the root systems of plants grown in the sun averaged 16 times larger (12" in diameter versus 3" in diameter). If you look carefully, you can, early on, detect plants whose root systems have been invaded by other shrubs or trees. The same is true of plants experiencing poor drainage conditions - both have unique appearances which are readily apparent.

SEE YOU IN THE SPRING

Dear Azalea Enthusiast:

Winter is almost over and hopefully; the new year finds each of you well.

For those of you who do not know me, I am a small grower, growing approximately 1400 azalea varieties (excluding my own hybrids). However; due to space limitations, most cultivars are produced in very limited quantities. Also, as noted by the * on the plant listing, many are available only as "Liners" in 4 inch pots.

I will accept reservations for advance plant orders again this year. However; in the case of liners, it will be necessary to take delivery of orders, by 25 April. This results from my having insufficient storage space for liners; once selling begins.

Ask if you don't see a desired variety listed in the catalog. Approximately 300 additional (unlisted) are available in very limited quantities. I will continue to actively seek out new and rare azalea cultivars. If there is a variety that you have been unable to find, please advise, and I will attempt to locate it.

In view of increased requests for my giving talks on azaleas, please be advised that I am generally only available during the period October - March. Also due to my having recently purchased a home on Amelia Island, Florida, I will be absent for increased periods during the Winter. I have color slides of approximately 1,000 cultivars to support my presentations.

The plant descriptions are primarily based upon personal experience. However; where I have limited experience, I have used generally accepted reference data. Bloom dates are based on Springfield, Virginia conditions and can vary as much as 2 weeks dependent upon Spring temperatures. Hardiness data refers to bloom bud hardiness and is the minimum temperature where no foliage or bud damage will occur on properly hardened, dormant plants. Generally at extended temperatures 5 to 7 degrees below that stated, 50% or greater bud loss may occur. Plant size refers to plant size in 10 years when grown in an open habitat.

I offer my sincere appreciation to those of you who assisted me during the past year. I continue to attempt to provide the very best possible azalea varieties at the lowest possible prices, but my efforts would be futile, without your generous assistance. Thanks again.

I tentatively plan to begin sales on 30 March. I am normally available 7 days a week. Please call to insure that I am home.

HOLLY SPRINGS HYBRIDS

The "Holly Springs Hybrids" are my results after 13 years of hybridizing effort designed to produce azaleas with larger blooms, dwarf to mid-size growth habit, and increased cold hardiness. With the 79 cultivars which are being introduced in 1990, a total of 84 varieties have now been introduced. These were selected, after testing, from approximately 41,000 seedlings which were produced from 451 crosses. Approximately 14,000 seedlings remain under evaluation. Unfortunately, some listed varieties will not be available for purchase in 1990 due to the advance orders placed last Spring. However; it was necessary to make a complete listing, so as to provide plant descriptions for those purchasers.

I intend to register all of the plants ultimately, and as many as possible will be accomplished during 1990. For those who previously purchased plants under a hybridizing number, that number is included in the plant description, to enable determination of the cultivar names. Approximately 60 cultivars, which are under evaluation for possible introduction during 1991 or 1992, are offered under their propagation number. In the case of plant names, all were selected based upon specific aspects of the plant or for individuals who have had a significant impact upon my life or hybridizing program. I have listed some data with plant descriptions and will include complete information when the program is terminated in approximately 6 years. The name for the hybrid group - "Holly Springs" - is taken from a small but charming antebellum, Northern Mississippi town near The University of Mississippi, where I attended college. Holly Springs was also where I met William Faulkner, we had the distinction of sharing the same "bootlegger".

HUANG HYBRIDS

These hybrids are the result of an extensive hybridizing effort in China by Mr. Huang who is now deceased. Little is known of this hybrid group primarily because of Mr. Huang's demise and as a result of the destruction of most of his records and stock plants during the Chinese Cultural Revolution, a period during which Mr. Huang was forced to terminate his work on azaleas and toil as a laborer on a collective farm. Dr. G. F. Drake obtained cuttings of the hybrids from the Shanghai Botanical Garden in 1982 and introduced them in the United States for further evaluation. None of the three varieties known to have been used as parents have, to my knowledge, been introduced into the United States. I acquired approximately 40 varieties in 1983 and after three years of evaluation, became very excited with many of the cultivars. In fact, so much so, that I acquired another 80 varieties in 1987. Although many varieties have not been grown for sufficient time to allow a comprehensive evaluation, and the favorable winter conditions during the past two years have precluded adequate cold hardiness evaluation, it has become abundantly clear to me that they represent a major hybridizing effort and will ultimately come to include some of the "best 100" azaleas known to the Western world. The range of plant characteristics is very broad; including both small and very large blooms, small and extremely large foliage, plants with varying growth characteristics, and all major bloom forms. All cultivar's were introduced without names, using a four digit numerical code (2-1-62 as an example). The code translates as follows:

First Digit : Indicates the bloom time in Shanghai

1 Early April 2 Late April 3 Mid May 4 June

Second Digit : Indicates type and size of bloom

1 Large Single	4 Large Hose in Hose
2 Medium Single	5 Medium Hose in Hose
3 Small Single	6 Small Hose in Hose
7 Double, Semi-Double, and Hose in Hose

Third and Fourth Digit : Indicates Color

11 - 19 White	41 - 49 Lavender
21 - 29 Light Pink	51 - 59 Rosy/Purple-Red
31 - 39 Pink	61 - 69 Red
71 - 89 Bi-Color or Variegated
